This architectural drawing shows a side elevation of a building. The facade is characterized by a series of windows of various sizes, all of which are outlined in red. The windows are arranged in a somewhat regular pattern across the building's height. The building's structure is indicated by thin black lines, and the overall style is that of a technical architectural sketch.

This architectural drawing shows a side elevation of a building. The facade is characterized by a series of windows with red frames. On the left side, there is a large, textured, triangular area that appears to be a sloped roof or a wall section. The building has a multi-story structure with various window sizes and arrangements, including some with multiple panes. The drawing is a technical sketch, likely for architectural purposes.

This architectural drawing shows a side elevation of a building. The facade is characterized by a series of windows with red frames. The windows are arranged in a regular pattern, with some being larger and more prominent than others. The building's structure is indicated by vertical and horizontal lines, and the roofline is visible at the top. The drawing is a technical representation of the building's exterior design.

This architectural drawing shows a section of a building facade. On the left, there is a large, stylized, leaf-like decorative element with a textured, hatched interior. To the right of this element is a series of windows. The top part of the facade features a large, multi-paned window with a decorative border. Below this, there are several smaller windows, some of which are highlighted with red outlines. The drawing is a technical architectural sketch, likely for a design or construction project.
